

I am a licensed teacher with a degree in BS Education and have accumulated 9 years of teaching in private international schools in the Philippines, Mexico and Estonia. I have gained substantial teaching and learning certifications through IB workshops that help me to contextualize the aspects of the PYP programme in the classroom setting.

The professional development I experienced has made me committed to structure my learning engagements using a purposeful inquiry that hooks students actively to their own learning. The PYP programme helps me to reinforce my approaches to teaching through authentic learning that is inquiry-based and conceptually driven.

It is my philosophy to importantly place the learner as the center of my teaching and learning practices. Considering their ability, capacity to learn and even their personal background is crucial to their academic development. I believe that learning to learn is the essence of their formative years in education. It means that gradually releasing them to independently inquire on the relevant knowledge, skills and understanding within the context of reality is necessary in order to increase their survival chance in appropriately dealing with their issues and challenges in life.
