

I hold a BA in Russian Philology and have graduated from Tallinn University with a Master's degree in Slavonic Languages and Cultures. My minor speciality – English Philology.

I have been teaching Russian as a foreign language in Tallinn Language School for two years. I have given lessons of English language for children as well.

I am keen on learning languages. I speak Russian as my native language and speak English and Estonian fluently. I now embarked on starting to learn Chinese.

I enjoy teaching, but the best part of it – my students' success. I do my best to help students master Russian language, discover Russian culture, to broaden their mind. It is my number one priority to make my students love the process of learning foreign languages and cognition of other cultures. The atmosphere during my lessons is calm, fun and unstressed.

I love travelling and outdoor activities. Outdoor activities support my physical health, travelling broadens my mind, allows me to explore world cultures and habits.
